It is authoritatively denied that the Vermont legislature has its eyes on the Fourth of July as a date for adjournment.

When a man wants to say something real mean to another, he now calls him a gargoyle and refers him to Congressman Willett of New York for the explanation.

President-elect Taft goes right on reducing his golf score. In fact, he's getting out of the "bumblepuppy" class, according to his own admission. Several persons are qualifying for the Golf Cabinet, too.

The little town of Topsham has had fresh attention called to itself through the resignation of President George A. Gates of Pomona college, Claremont, Cal., who is a native of Topsham and one of its most famous sons. President Gates resigned because of ill health.

Railroad conditions on the Missisquoi branch of the Central Vermont line have reached the stage of a "monumental scandal," in the opinion of the Enosburg Standard, which calls upon the citizens of the section to rise in their righteous indignation and appeal to the railroad commissioners for relief. The contemporary lays it to incompetency of management either in St. Albans or in Montreal.

We have heretofore tried to defend the legislature from severe and rather general strictures upon its work. The only effect such criticisms and defense have had, however, seems to have been to encourage the body to go from bad to worse—Burlington News.

Sad words are these, and greatly to be regretted. When The Burlington News gives up the task of redeeming a black subject, things have come to a pretty bad pass.

As soon as Editor Frank E. Howe of Bennington got away from the legislature to carry Vermont's electoral votes to Washington, his co-workers in the vineyard of laws slaughtered his bill to establish trunk lines of highway in Vermont. That was the sequence of events, but perhaps they were not cause and effect and should not be so considered. By the way, Editor Howe has made a very capable representative for the town of Bennington, and, to say the least, he has fully sustained the prestige of the Catamount Town in the general assembly. If there has been any "ducking" of responsibility or dodging of votes it has not been done by Frank Howe. He hasn't missed a session, never skipped a vote, and has been recorded on every year and may vote. So much for the visible evidence of his worth as a legislator. Over and above that, however, was his sensible consideration of the problems as they came before the legislature, his insight being aided by a rather extended general knowledge of conditions throughout the state.

In this changeable climate one never knows whether to-morrow means a fur coat or a raincoat—or an outing suit, but for every change of weather or mind, here are the clothes.

To-day our special offering is—50 Mens, Boy's and Children's Overcoats at 1-2 price. See Windows.

WASTING OUR WATER SUPPLIES.

Another Vermont municipality, Rutland, appears to have suffered during the past year from water waste. This sort of thing is getting to be general throughout the state, or wherever the municipality controls the supply or the greater part of the supply of the community. The same trouble has been found in Barre and it has furnished cause for complaint at various times during the past few years. More recently, and induced chiefly during dry weather because of the shortage, the city officials of this municipality have taken to sloughing; and they have found in some cases a wanton waste of the city's water supply. Just how much this waste would amount to in the course of the year cannot be accurately estimated, but the amount would be certainly very large, to say the least. It seems rather restrictive to have come to a general use of meters, but that plan will be absolutely necessary if the present reckless disregard of the conservation of the city's resources is continued. When the city erects a large storage reservoir, as it probably will do within a short time, this waste will be felt all the more keenly. Let us take this matter home to ourselves and, individually, do our part toward saving this unnecessary drain.

CURRENT COMMENT

A Well Conducted Hotel.

During the discussion in the Senate over the innkeepers' license bill Senator Fairbanks took occasion to say that if all summer hotels were as well managed as the Equinox at Manchester there would be no trouble with the issuance of licenses. The proprietor of such an old established and prosperous hotel as the Equinox with its large number of guests who return summer after summer to the beautiful village among the mountains would not have the slightest incentive to violate the provisions of the proposed innkeepers' license. The Equinox would have to drop away from its present standard a long distance before its proprietor would be looking for local bar trade—Bennington Banner.

The Consolidated Lighting company has completed its new transformer plant at Waterbury and will put it into operation at once. It will be remembered that the company suffered the loss of a transformer plant by fire last fall and this new structure is designed to fill the place of the old one. The building is absolutely fireproof, being constituted entirely of brick, concrete and stone, the only wood in the whole structure being the window frames.

P. B. Thomas has announced that he will not serve upon the board of listers another year. Major Thomas has made a capable member of the board and has had quite a little experience in the inventory taking line, but other business takes the greater portion of his time.

The third of a trio of burglaries occurred Thursday night at the store of Marvin & Sherburne on Main street when the party or parties broke out a pane of glass in the rear door of the store through which they entered. There is nothing to indicate what time they did it but they got away with some groceries and it is understood, with a little money. The first of the robberies occurred one night last week when the Boston Bargain store was broken into in a very similar manner to that of The McQueen store, the entrance being made through the back door in the cellar. In this store about $13 was taken.
